Helping rural Tasmanians is good for your health

Why?

- FACT Tasmania has the highest rate of premature deaths in Australia, primarily occurring in rural areas
- FACT In Tasmania, avoidable hospitalisations increase with remoteness
- FACT Tasmania has the second highest rate of deaths of any state or territory from potentially avoidable causes

There is a clear imbalance in health outcomes between metropolitan areas and those of us living in rural and remote areas; distance is not the only factor with economic status, cultural background and lifestyle behaviours also playing a role.

It’s not fair, it’s not necessary, it’s not acceptable...

What’s the solution?

In keeping with its proud history of innovation, Royal Flying Doctor Service Tasmania is working with existing services and community partners to improve health outcomes by focusing on health promotion, prevention and early detection.

Right as Rain has been developed to address the specific health needs of individual communities.

In line with available funding and support, Right as Rain can deliver a variety of primary care services:

- Health Screening: cancer, heart disease, diabetes
- Health Checks: blood pressure, cholesterol, oral, hearing
- Health Promotion: physical activity, smoking, alcohol and other drugs, sexual health, nutrition
- Mental health
- Women and men's health
We are in this for the long haul with a five-year commitment. If we do our job well, we will do ourselves out of business!

What can you do?

Keeping people healthy for longer will ease the pressure on our health services and our hospitals; ill health affects us all.
